- 16 to California; and
- 17 WHEREAS, Sarah was raised and educated in part in the household of
- 18 Major and Mrs. William Ormsby of Carson City; and

1 WHEREAS, Sarah, before her 14th birthday, had acquired five languages,
2 including three Indian dialects, Spanish and English, and was one of only 3 two Northern Paiutes in Nevada at the time who was able to read, write and 4 speak English; and

5 WHEREAS, Sarah was an intelligent and respected woman who served as 6 an interpreter for the United States Army and the Bureau of Indian Affairs
7 and served as an aide, scout, peacemaker and interpreter for General O. O.
8 Howard during the Bannock War of 1878, in Idaho; and

9 WHEREAS, In 1883, Sarah published Life Among the Paiutes: Their 10 Wrongs and Claims, the first book written and published by a Native
11 American woman; and

12 WHEREAS, Sarah became a tireless spokeswoman for the Northern 13 Paiute Tribe and in 1879, gave more than 300 speeches throughout the 14 United States concerning the plight of her people; and

15 WHEREAS, Sarah established a nongovernmental school for Paiute
16 children near Lovelock, Nevada, that operated for 3 years and became a 17 model for future educational facilities for Native American children; and

18 WHEREAS, Sarah met with President Rutherford B. Hayes and 19 addressed Congress concerning the return of the Northern Paiute Tribe to 20 its homeland in Nevada; and

21 WHEREAS, Sarah, in fighting for justice, peace and equality for all
22 persons represented the highest ideals of America and is hereby recognized 23 as a distinguished citizen of Nevada; now, therefore,
