Assemblyman Carpenter moved the adoption of the resolution.

Remarks by Assemblymen Carpenter and Anderson.

Assemblyman Carpenter requested that the following remarks be entered in the Journal.

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think that we all need to strive for the ideals of Sarah Winnemucca—to not have anything in our hearts that would not be proper. We need to have the ideal that we are all created equal. We need to always treat everyone with respect and do the best we can for our fellow man.

Living and growing up in rural Nevada, Native Americans have always been my friends. In school they were my classmates. We played together in basketball and football. Later on, in my adult life, Native Americans have always been my friends, my employees, and officials whom I have worked with in day-to-day life as we try to improve things for all of us. I would like to mention three or four who have had a great influence on my life. There was J.V. Walker, one of the greatest high school athletes during the 1940s. J.V. Walker paid the ultimate sacrifice in the Korean War. George Adams worked for my uncles. He was a world champion bronco rider. Then there is Annette Cavanaugh, who was raised in poverty on the reservation in Owyhee, but went on to be, and is now, our superintendent of schools in Elko. I think we all have to recognize the great work of Sarah Winnemucca and the great understanding she had and all of the things she had to put up with to try to better her people.

Before I present the resolution to Benjamin Victor, I would like to recite to the people in this Assembly a few of his accomplishments. Mr. Victor is the artist who sculpted the Sarah Winnemucca statue. I must say that he beat out our Elko native, Sarah Sweetwater, and we were disappointed with that, but after seeing Mr. Victor and his family here, and seeing the statue, I think it was a good choice. We always need to remember that if it hadn't been for Sarah Sweetwater there to give him a little push and make him do better, he might not have won. Benjamin won the commission to sculpt the Sarah Winnemucca statue, a monumental representation of the state of Nevada's addition to the national statutory hall in Washington, D.C. last month. He is the youngest artist to have ever received such an honor. Benjamin resides in Aberdeen, South Dakota, where he is now on the staff of Northern State University. He has been commissioned to complete fourteen assignments during his young life of twenty-five years.

Benjamin is married and has two children who are with us today: his wife Julie, and children Caleb and Audrey. Please give them an Assembly welcome.

The unveiling of the statue will be at the Capitol at 5:30 p.m. tonight. You are all welcome to be there and I think it would be a nice gesture on our part if we could be there.

One of the people who has been a great influence in my life is one of our own, Cindy Benjamin, of the Front Desk. Cindy, please stand and we will recognize you. Thank you.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON:

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wish to rise in support of the resolution. I think this is a resolution and recognition that has long been wanting. While we have taken up the cause of Ms. Winnemucca in proposing this in the past, I think it is most fitting that the statue graced the nation's capital as a representative of the spirit and the long indebtedness this state owes to the native people of our state. These first Americans, as they should recognize, are the people who have allowed our society to infringe upon them. Ms. Winnemucca's contribution at a critical time period in our history is emblematic of the way this particular native group has helped us survive in this otherwise desolate state. It is their caring and understanding that has really made it possible for us to survive, again and again. For that contribution, by recognizing Ms. Winnemucca and the native inhabitants of our state, I think this is an honor long overdue.

Resolution adopted unanimously.
