Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Existing law defines an agency which provides child welfare services as the local office of the Division of Child and Family Services of the Department of Human Resources or the county agency that provides or arranges for necessary child welfare services. (NRS 432B.030) Under existing law, an agency which provides child welfare services is required to provide, to some extent, maintenance and special services to children waiting to be adopted and children placed in foster homes, homes of relatives or other facilities or institutions. (NRS 432.020) Maintenance includes general expenses for care such as board, shelter, clothing, transportation and other necessary or incidental expenses. Special services include medical, hospital, psychiatric, surgical or dental services. Maintenance and special services must be provided until the child reaches the age of 18 or until graduation from high school. (NRS 432.010)
