Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Existing law authorizes the Nevada Commission on Homeland Security to hold closed meetings to receive security briefings, discuss procedures for responding to acts of terrorism and related emergencies and discuss security deficiencies relating to public services, public facilities and infrastructure. Under existing law, information and materials prepared for the Commission for such a closed meeting or received by the Commission during such a closed meeting and the minutes and any audiovisual or electronic reproduction of such a closed meeting are confidential and are not subject to subpoena, discovery or public inspection. (NRS 239C.140)

This bill authorizes the governing body of a local government and an advisory body to the governing body which is designated for emergency preparedness and operations to hold closed meetings to: (1) receive security briefings; (2) discuss tactical procedures for responding to acts of terrorism; (3) discuss security deficiencies relating to public services, public facilities and infrastructure; and (4) discuss response plans. This bill prohibits the governing body of a local government and an advisory body to the governing body from discussing issues of public policy related to acts of terrorism or the payment of the costs of securing against or responding to acts of terrorism in a closed meeting. This bill also provides qualified confidentiality for information and materials, minutes and reproductions relating to those closed meetings and requires the provision of those minutes and reproductions to the Nevada Commission on Homeland Security.
