EXPLANATION – Matter in bolded italics is new; matter between brackets [~~omitted material~~] is material to be omitted.

AN ACT relating to trespassing; revising the provisions governing the posting of warnings against trespassing; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Under existing law, a person commits the crime of trespassing if the person willfully goes or remains upon any land or in any building after having been warned not to trespass. (NRS 207.200) For the purposes of determining whether a person has been given sufficient warning not to trespass, the owner of land may choose to fence the area or may paint the area in a specific manner.

This bill changes the interval between posts, structures or natural objects that must be painted with fluorescent orange paint from 200 feet to such a distance as is necessary to ensure that a person has a clear line of vision from one such post, structure or natural object to the next, but not less than every 1,000 feet if the land is used for agricultural purposes or for herding or grazing livestock, or not less than every 200 feet if the land is used for other purposes. In addition, each corner of the land must be similarly marked. This bill also changes existing law, which requires that a post must be painted with not less than 50 square inches of paint and which requires that if the post is a metal fence post, the entire post must be painted, to provide that only the top 12 inches of any post must be painted, regardless of whether the post is made of wood, metal or other material. Furthermore, this bill requires that each side of all gates, cattle guards and openings that are designed for entry must be painted with fluorescent orange paint.
