AN ACT relating to aging persons; expanding the program of the Aging Services Division of the Department of Health and Human Services which provides community-based services to enable frail elderly persons to live independently to include frail elderly persons who have certain higher incomes under certain circumstances; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Under existing law, the Aging Services Division of the Department of Health and Human Services is required to establish and administer a program to provide community-based services to frail elderly persons to enable them to remain in their own homes or with their families and to avoid placement in a facility for long-term care. (NRS 427A.029, 427A.250-427A.280) Existing law further authorizes the Division to adopt regulations to administer the program, and such regulations establish the requirements for eligibility for community-based services, including, without limitation, requirements for age, residency and income level. (NRS 427A.250; NAC 427A.402)

This bill expands the program to require the Division to provide community-based services to frail elderly persons who meet certain income requirements and who are limited due to one or more physical or mental limitations in at least two of the activities of daily living.
