AN ACT relating to peace officers; requiring a law enforcement agency to release a peace officer from his or her regular working hours to attend certain hearings and administrative proceedings under certain circumstances; requiring a law enforcement agency to compensate a peace officer for attending certain hearings and administrative proceedings; providing a civil penalty for certain violations of the rights of a peace officer; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel’s Digest:

1 If a peace officer is the subject of an investigation of alleged misconduct,
2 existing law provides that a law enforcement agency must interrogate the peace 3 officer during his or her regular working hours, if practical, or compensate the 4 peace officer for his or her time based on the peace officer’s wages, if no charges
5 arise from the interrogation. (NRS 289.060) Section 1 of this bill requires instead 6 that any time a peace officer is required to attend any interrogation, hearing or 7 administrative proceeding concerning the peace officer, such interrogation, hearing or 8 administrative proceeding must be held during the peace officer’s regular 9 working hours, or the peace officer must be released from his or her regular 10 working hours the day before the interrogation, hearing or administrative 11 proceeding and must be compensated for the day of the interrogation, hearing or 12 administrative proceeding at his or her regular wages.

13 Existing law provides that, if prejudicial evidence is obtained in violation of a 14 peace officer’s rights during an investigation of the peace officer which could result 15 in punitive action, that evidence is inadmissible in any administrative proceeding or 16 civil action against the peace officer. (NRS 289.085) Section 2 of this bill provides 17 that, in addition to the exclusion of the evidence, a person who violates a peace 18 officer’s rights intentionally, knowingly or willfully in such an investigation is
