AN ACT relating to the use of force; revising the provisions governing justifiable homicide; revising the provisions governing civil liability in actions involving the use of force; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Under existing case law, there is no duty to retreat before using deadly force if the person using deadly force is not the original aggressor and reasonably believes that he or she is about to be killed or seriously injured. (Culverson v. State, 106 Nev. 484 (1990)) Section 1 of this bill provides that under the defense of justifiable homicide there is no duty to retreat if the person using deadly force: (1) is not the original aggressor; (2) has a right to be present at the location where deadly force is used; and (3) is not engaged in criminal activity at the time deadly force is used. Section 1 also revises the definition of “justifiable homicide” to include specifically the killing of a person in defense of a motor vehicle or in defense against any person who manifestly intends and endeavors to enter the motor vehicle of another for the purpose of assaulting a person who is in the motor vehicle.

Existing law provides that a killing is justifiable if the circumstances were sufficient to excite the fears of a reasonable person and the person killing really acted under the influence of those fears and not in a spirit of revenge. (NRS 200.130) Section 2 of this bill establishes a presumption that the killing is justifiable under the standard set forth in NRS 200.130 if the person killing: (1) knew or had reason to believe that the person who was killed was entering unlawfully and with force, or attempting to enter unlawfully and with force, the habitation or property of another; (2) knew or had reason to believe that the person

20 who was killed was committing or attempting to commit a felony; and (3) did not 21 provoke the person who was killed.

22 Existing law provides that in a civil action brought by or on behalf of a person 23 against whom force which is intended or likely to cause death or bodily injury was 24 used: (1) there is a presumption that the person who used such force had a 25 reasonable fear of imminent death or bodily injury to himself or herself or another 26 person if the person against whom such force was used was committing burglary or 27 invasion of the home; and (2) that presumption must be overcome by clear and 28 convincing evidence to the contrary for the civil action to be maintained. (NRS 29 41.095) Section 3 of this bill extends that presumption to circumstances in which 30 the person who used such force was in his or her motor vehicle and the other person 31 was committing grand larceny of the motor vehicle with the use or threatened use 32 of a deadly weapon. Section 3 also enacts a provision, based upon Texas law, 33 which provides that a person is immune from civil liability for using force which is 34 intended or likely to cause death or bodily injury if the person was justified in using 35 such force under the applicable provisions of Nevada criminal law. (Texas Civil 36 Practice and Remedies Code, § 83.001)
