The Department of Corrections has reviewed BDR 52-1022 which will institute restrictions on the sale, lease, or transfer of ivory products in the State of Nevada. Exemptions will apply to antique products made up of 20% ivory, that are musical instruments, that are transferred to the beneficiary or heir to a trust or estate, or that have historical documents. A second penalty will be punished as a category E felony and a third or subsequent penalty as a category D felony. Given that the bill creates a new crime and felony convictions won't apply until a second or greater offense, the Nevada Department of Corrections assumes that passage of the law will have a negligible effect on its prison population in the near future.
