REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Senator Buck requested that her remarks be entered in the Journal.

One of my favorite subjects in my life's mission and in the Legislature is grounded in the well-being of all children. I would like to recognize the Children's Advocacy Alliance has been actively engaged in Children's Week at the Legislature by hosting daily panels, townhalls, coffee chats joined by Legislators and bill discussions centered around critical policy areas that affect our children.

Every day is kicked off by kids featuring the Strong Start Cabinet who discuss their areas of interest and impacts they are making in the community. Monday focused on Education; Tuesday, Safety; Wednesday, Mental Health; Thursday, Physical Health, and Friday, Economic Well-Being. The Children's Advocacy Alliance is committed to equity and access for all Nevada's children as well as lives filled with opportunity and success.

As you know, this is National School Social Work Week as well as School Social Work Week in Nevada.

Just 5 short years ago, Nevada had only 29 school social workers, all but 1 of them in the Clark County School District. During the 2015 Legislative Session, then Governor Brian Sandoval created the Social Workers in Schools State block grant. Since that time, those State funds have been used to expand social workers and other mental-health workers in schools by nearly 1,300 percent, growing from 29 to over 350 in 14 school districts and 13 charter academies. Some of the most important services they provide are in-crisis prevention and response including suicide prevention. Statistics show that 1 out of 5 students suffer from a mental-health concern, and 70 percent of students throughout the Nation receive their primary mental-health supports at school.

While we have seen amazing growth, Nevada is still far behind the "best practice ratios" adopted by the State Board of Education last spring. Ideally, schools should have one social worker per 250 students. To meet that goal, we will need another 1,395 school social workers to support Nevada's most valuable resource, our students.

As students slowly begin to return to their schools and extracurricular activities, we must help them adjust. Our school social workers can lead the way, and I am committed to doing my part to support this vital endeavor.

I invite you to join me in that commitment in honor of school social workers throughout the State.

Senator Cannizzaro moved that the Senate adjourn until Monday, March 15, 2021, at 11:00 a.m.

Motion carried.

Senate adjourned at 12:06 p.m.
