Comment: This BDR has two rather unrelated provisions. First it would authorize certified nurse-midwife's to be allowed to perform certain physical examinations and obtain medical information on patients admitted to a hospital for purposes of giving birth. This provision of the BDR should not have any material financial impact on the plan. The second provision prohibits carrier networks from denying a request from certain providers of health care for participation in their network. The provider must: 1) meet the terms of the network 2) be employed by a school of medicine or osteopathic medicine, and 3) request to be a provider. Given criteria #2, this appears to be focused on school of medicine employees only and therefore, not have a material impact on plan costs.
