AN ACT relating to criminal procedure; extending the time for which a judgment of death must be executed; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Under existing law, when a judgment of death is pronounced, a judge is required to issue a warrant that appoints the week in which the judgment is to be executed. Existing law requires the appointed week to be not less than 60 days and not more than 90 days from the time the judgment was pronounced. (NRS 176.345) Section 1 of this bill instead requires the appointed week: (1) to be not less than 180 days nor more than 270 days from the time of judgment; or (2) if there is any warrant in any case appointing a week within which the judgment is to be executed in force at the time a new warrant is issued, to be not less than 180 days nor more than 270 days from the latest date appointed for execution of the judgment.

Under existing law, if for any reason a judgment of death has not been executed and it remains in force, the court which rendered the judgment of death may draw a new warrant. Existing law requires the new warrant to appoint a week in which the judgment is to be executed that is not less than 15 days nor more than 30 days after the date of the warrant. (NRS 176.495) Section 2 of this bill instead requires the appointed week to be not less than 180 days nor more than 270 days after the date of the warrant, and in any event, not less than 180 days nor more than 270 days from the latest date appointed by any warrant in any case for execution of the judgment.
